Overview

This bill requires the commissioner of human services to establish a new consumer-directed community supports (CDCS) budget exception for persons with both developmental disabilities and type 1 diabetes.

Individuals receiving medical assistance (MA) disability waiver services who choose the CDCS option receive a state-set limit for individual budgets and allowable services/expenses. CDCS is an option under the MA waivers that provides a person with more choice and responsibility in managing his or her: (1) services and supports; and (2) budget allocation. A financial management services provider helps the person with financial and employer-related tasks.
